HR. WEBSTERS RECEPTION IN BOSTON

Mr. Webster's reception by the Bostonians of the 9th was a very imposing demonstration of the respect in which he is held by people of every shade of political opinion except the craziest of the Garis position against except the cazzest of the Gar-rison men. An immense procession escorted him through the principal streets to the Common, where, in the midst of a concourse of 3000 people, it. F. Stevesson, Esq'r welcomed the great statesman to his home. At the conclusion of Mr. Stevenson's address, Mr. Wenster arose, mindst tremendous cheering, and said:

man to his bond. Mr. Weinster arose, amidst tretensions address, Mr. Weinster arose, amidst tremendous cheering, and said:

"Mr. Steenson, and Fellow-Citizens of Masscelusatts; this honor which you confer on me, todrey, as much exceeds all my expectations, as I feel that it exceeds my merits. I owe it all to your anthouse, friendship, and constant regard; I rejone in it, I am proud of it; nothing on earth can be more gratifying to me, than to come into the bosom of a community I have endeavored to serve for so many years, and find that I am not dissounced, [Great applicase.] Gentlemen, this advanced period of the afternoon will allow me to address to you but a few remarks, but out of the alumdance of my heart, my mouth will speak to you. I am known to you for half of my life, and too have given me a high political position. The feegledature of Massachusents have sent me to Congress, and with all humility I am ready to give an account of my stewardship. It is now thirty years since I came to the city of Boston, in my early manhood—I had some, but not much, experience in political affairs—I left the would of politics, as I thought, for ever, to take up the honorable profession of the law and to carre a livelimod for myself and family—from my brethrea of the bar and from my fellow-citizens at large,
I resolved every kindness, and it was enough for me that I could earn my bread and enjoy the intellectual society of the citizens of Boston. I remained for some years here, following this private cours; but no man knows his own destination, at least I did not know nine. [Laughter]

As I was poring over Mansfield and Blackstone, in October, 1623, some gentlemen called upon me, who did not look like clients. These strangers were a Cammintee, and among them was Thomas H. Perhins. They said, "We have come to tell your destiny. Lay asido your books; you mass reported the city of Boston. We will take no answer?" and Gol. Perkins made a grazeful how, and went off. [Laughter]. I submitted to what appeared to

been attended with poventy or weath, with subsetted so health, I feel that I am amply rewarded [Apphases]

Now I must say to you that from roy carriest days the political history of Massachusetts has been my beau ideal. I have always perusal and studied it. I wish to ask you what Boston was when I hecame a member of Congress? The Instoty of Massachusetts begins with the history of incomity. It begins with the Revolution itself. For what did Massachusetts contend, for what did her sons pour cut that blood like water, and run the risk of being doomed to the gallows as traitors? It was for no local or sentional object. She did not brave the power of England for the little strip of land between New Humpsier and Connection. I was not for this glorious Bay either. No I no! so: Massachusetts struck for the liberty of this Continent. [Great cheering] Her overlassing plory, evertasting unless she terminates it herself, her everlasting glory is, that she made the first effort made by man to separate America from European rule. [Applause.]

Centhemen, friends, and fellow-citizens, let no tell you that Massachusetts had all America in her ident, when she struck the blow for freedom. I was nothing less that Wagers died for. The soil of Massachusetts received his blood, and all the world is filled with his lane. But the admination of all generations is not sufficient to recompense ham for his devotion to his caustry. Now, that of Massachusetts received his blood, and all the world is alled with his fame. But the admination of all generations is not sufficient to recompense him for his devotion to his country. Now, that is the redown of Massachusetts. Her devotion for the universal cause. Her remown is placed on a broad and eternal basis, miless she subverts the throad foundations herself. That day, I hope will never happen. [Shouts of "Never."] If it should happen, the judgment of that day will be postponed till my head is covered with the sed of the calley. [Mr. Wrasten here became very tranch affected and which applants.] It was no markow or solitish policy inhuenced Massachusetts in the day in which she struggled.

Her policy was large and comprehensive,—she never drew a breath that was not national, none that did not embrace all the colonies. If the British sovereign had offered her in that day a National legislation,—had offered her in that day a National legislation,—had offered be 30 scats in the House of Commons, and 200 noblemen for the House of Lords, she would have rejected it all. If America, and if America did not become free, she wished to be free with America, and if America did not become free, she wished to should to the will of God, and suffer with America. [Much applause.] If any man would have us holicer that Massachusetts ever had, or now has, a different interest from the Republican cause of the country, he is an enemy to you and a memory to the United States. This it was inspired me on reading her early history. I never saw San's Adams and Jour halacocca, but I saw John Adams and Jour halacocca, but I saw John Adams and Jour halacocca, had the second free hales and the k-volution, the necessity of a Federal Parke.

After the k-volution, the necessity of a Federal

I saw John Admas, Exhinory Green, and Roe'r Treat Paine.

After the revolution, the necessity of a Federal Government became evident. It appeared to some of the wisest men of that day, to John Admass among the rest, that there was a danger of a Central Government acting upon the people of the several States and controlling their actions, but there was a necessity of it, and they responded to that necessity. I think I see old John Admass in his half Quaker dress, and standing with his gold-headed case, five feet long, when he shouted kye to the question whether they would adopt the Constitution of the United States. [Ave was reaches of from every part of the Assembly.] Massachusetts those passed under that Constitution, and subjected all her automoree to its protection, which was then three times greater than all the connecte of the country; and she has ever since received a rich reward by the central government holding up as her flag, all over the world, the erripes and state, instead of holding up the bow and arrows of the Indians. [Applause.]

In these days there were Cabor, Sedgwick, and and arrows of the Indians. [Applause.]

In these days there were Cabot, Sedgwick, and Pawill, and Goodhue, and Eastace, and General Varnous, of Middlesex, and Samuel Dexter, all containt men, and distinguished in their day and generation. At that time, there was often a difference of opinion between these men upon certain questions. Then were rival candidates.—Sometimes one succeeded and sometimes another. Sometimes one succeeded and sometimes another, all 1923, when it was my good or my cril future to be elected a member of Congress from your city. But, allow me to say, that up to that time, there was not a man from hersking to Cape Cod, who had the slightest tincture of dismion sentiments. [Applicase] And when I went into Congress rom Boston, there was not a man who entertained any dismion sentiments. There were Congress from 30ston, there was not a man were constrained lany disminon sentiments. There were then no "ifs," and "bets," and "ands," [laughter] and if there were any such man, he could not have been his position for one hour. That was the Massachusetts which I confirmed and honored.

Democracy what Jefferson and Jackson would The character of a nation is made out of fices it is not so much the portmiture of the pencil as the nurrative of the pen. History tells us what she was when I honored her as among the first, if not the first, of all the patriotic Union States. If alte did not go before others, she was not behind any in attachment to that great principle which made America what she is. I accordingly entered into the burial case are seen to go all. I am not here to apologies for it. Not nor on the other hand do I demand approbation. I leave it to posterity, and the country, and the world, to say whether it will stand the test of time and truth. THE PROSPECT.

The intelligent correspondent of the Philadelphia North American unites from Washington as follows:

Pennsylvania proudly bore off the banner in the National Convention, and it is expected that she will appear lending the war its November next, with than standard leading the way to a glorious success. Let Pennsylvania be the banner State of that sho believe that she whole north-west are equally encouraging. Wisconsin, Iowa, Mish igath, Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio, send cheering accounts by every mail; and it would not surprise if every one of these States was found in line and responding cortially to the gallant Whigs of other quarters of the Union. Gen Scatt's clee ton is as fixed and centain as any thing in human althis can be, if the Whig party will do its duty.

We have come to the same conclusion as the writer of the above, as to the general result not only, but as to particular states. In the canvass this. fail, there is no reason to suppose that the Hunker vote will receive any increase from the Free Soil side, but there is a reasonable prospect of a large increase of the Whig vote from those who voted for Van Buren in 1848. A very large number of hase who have maintained the distinctive free soil organization, will make their choice between Gon. Then as to the regular Democratic vote. Wix TELD Scort's name, among the masses, is a tower of strougth. His military career not only, bu his honorable, pariotic conduct through a long public life, in every station in which he has been placed, has endeared him to them, and no party unces can, by any possibility, hold them. There can be no enthusiasm got up for the "Democratie" cambidate-and there is none aroused by the mention of his name or services. That nomina-There was at first, some show of enthusiasm, as the press and speakers alluded to the military services of Gen. Prence, but that amountion has been exended. The record is all before the people, and when the most excessive proises, within the bounds of truth, have been lavished upon him, the career of Winfield Scott, his Commanding Officer stands out in brighter colors, and pales "their ineffectual fires." Add to these reasons for our hopes of success he fact that our people have never been so there oughly aroused to the necessity of some solid encouragement to Home Industry-a doctrine which Mr. Prence repudiates; that the general sontiment is most curnestly in favor of justice to Western lake and river commerce—a doctrine to which Mr. Pierce has always been bitterly opposed; and the fact that our opponents, learning no wisdom from experience, insist upon insulting Gen. Scorr with all sorts of trumped up charges—a sort of treatment of men like him which the American I people never will endure in patience-- and the

Away up in Bamboo, a place built up within a brief period by active hands, and thriving by active effort—a good deal of a manufacturing town withal—the democracy have been enjoying a sort of ratification meeting. Several speeches were then and there made, all of the same old sort; one of them, however, published in the Sauk County Standard, being so italicized as to invite attention there as well as elsewhere. It was in excessive gratulation over the immutability of the " Demoracy," and claimed that through all the long course of time (probably since the flood) it "has had but one set of principles—and those princi-ples the principles of Jefferson and Jackson."

Perhaps the Sarak County people are verdant mough to be deluded by the mention of the enough to be delinded by names of Jefferson and Jackson, but we would not like to insure it. Perhaps they don't know what Jefferson really did think about certain matters now supposed to be entirely "democratic." Porhaps, for example, they don't know that both of those Presidents were in favor of protection to Home Industry, and that both of them were wil-Democracy what Jefferson and Jackson would have thought of a Free Trade and and anti-West-

Col. Benton on Northern Aggressions.

Col. Benton is canvassing the St. Louis district ery thoroughly, meeting his admirers in every town almost, and setting forth in his peculiar and very foreible manner, his claims to the suffrage of the people for a scat in Congress. If he should succeed at the polls in being returned to the low r House, for which he is a candidate, and corry into it the same principles and spirit which he carries into the canvass, he will make a revolution in that body. As heretofore, the Col's con-stant subject is the "conspiracy" against him, which resulted in leaving him at home, and the folly of his enemies, who passed the resolutions committing Missouri to the Southern secession policy, under the plea of "Northern aggression." The way he strips the false covering from these who advocated and passed these resolutions, will be a caution to demagogues hereafter. His testi-mony on this subject, which we give below, will ne read with interest :-

First, the resolve which charges the Northern States with aggressions and encroadments upon the slave property of the South, and a design to attolish slavery in the States. This is false, and wicked, and is proved to be so by the conduct of these States in the Congress of the United States. So far from such aggression and encreadment, and from any such design, the fact is, that the area of slavery has been doubled in the United States, and by the help of the free states, during the last thirty years, and the greater part of it, since this cry was first promulgated in 1835.

Remember, the Northern States have been a majority in the House of Representatives during First, the resolve which charges the Northern

Remember, the Northern States have been a majority in the House of Representatives during all that time, and without votes from them no law extending slave territory could be passed; and were equal in the Senate, where the ratification of treaties require two-thirds of the body, and where, consequently, no treaty increasing slave territory could be ratified without a heavy vote from them. This being remembered, let us see what has been done in this lines ince this cry begun. Florida, large enough for a State of the first magnitude, has been acquired by treaty, and added to the Slave States of the South. Texas, given away by a Southern administration in 1819, has been recovered by treaty in 1647, and has territory, and a com-

MILWAUKER, July 15, 152. Messes, Editors :—I see by your paper of this moraling, that the Northern Indiana run from Monroe to Cleveland in 5 hours, and you give the distance run is 120 miles. Cleveland has either been moved east, or Monroe west, if that is the distance now; all that could be made of it a few years since, was 100 miles; considerable allowance must have been made by the Captain for bad steering. I do not understand how it is some one has made out the distance from Monroe to Buffulo to be 245 miles; now if it is 120 miles from Monroe to Cleveland, Cleveland cannot be fast boats came into use.

Southern Opposition to General Scott.

After reading the following, from the Columbus (Ga.) Times, the reason of Messus. Toombs & Co.'s opposition to Gen. Scort, will be manifest:—

"About the time that Gen. Pierce was engaged in Congress, opposing and attempting to put down the Aboliticnists, Gen. Scott was giving them "aid and comfort." While Gen. Pierce was attempting to take from these Abolitionists the handle they wanted to made of a "denial of the right of petition," by contending (and in which Clay and Crittenden then obscurred with him, and in which the Representatives of Congress from the South have concurred in for the last seven or eight years past) that it was best to receive them, but to land how on the table and take no further notice of them—Gen. Scott was snoon. receive them, but to lay them on the tuble and lake no further notice of them.—Hen. Scott was smoothing the manner of them.—Hen. Scott was smoothing the manner of the manner of the manner of the constitution to receive. The solution to receive. The solution to receive the constitution to receive. The solution to receive the constitution to receive. The solution to repeat upon petitions relating to domestic slavery. It in the case of all other petitions. That is, then Congress was bound to treat the intermedialers in air own against relating to domestic slavery? with as much respect as it treated petitions for rank positional matter."

We submit the document to our readers, without note or comment.

An Incident at Chippewa, and the Result—Our Georgetown correspondent has to-day symmanicated to usan agreeable filled anecdote. He says that a worthy Deparent from the Cid Dominion yesterday called upon Gen. Scott, and was kindly received, as is every visiter who approaches from. It would have called upon your with pleasure," said the gaest, "on my own account, but as it is, I come with a message from my father. He was with you art Chippewa; and when he felt, severely wounded, you stopped the flow of blood from his wound with your hand, and ministered to his relief. He sends you his thanks, and the assurance that, though a Democrat, he and all his Democratic sons will sustain you on the day when your friends should show themselves such!" Gen.
